Homan's development: 'Untangling a knotted necklace'

By Jeffrey Shwom

More than 70 community events have taken place in the as-of-yet developed Gilman Station space while details of the plan are being ironed out.

As we approach the two-year anniversary of the opening of the Green Line Extension's Medford/Tufts line on December 12, the status of transit-oriented and civic space development next to train stations, especially the Gilman Square station, remains in process after years of planning. The Times caught up with the City of Somerville's Economic Development department, which is touting forward progress in development around Gilman Square.

Per the MBTA, "Transit-oriented development (TOD) is compact, walkable development at or near transit stations, generally including a mix of uses such as housing, shopping, employment, and recreational facilities." The MBTA took temporary control of the Homans site (350

Life in the VILLE by Jimmy Del Ponte

Trash man

I hope everyone had a great thanksgiving. I have a funny true story to share. Monday is trash day for our street so I brought all my stuff out and put it in the barrels. I went back inside and put the TV on waiting for Leave it to Beaver to come on.

I had an envelope with $80 in it and it was on my nightstand. My little trash barrel is on the floor nearby. I sat down on the edge of my bed and happened to notice the envelope was not there. I immediately and frantically tore the bed apart looking for the envelope to no avail.

I figured I threw it out with the trash. So now what? I dashed out to the curb with my trusty jackknife and cut the trash bag open and started picking through everything. No envelope. Someone walked by and I was rifling through that trash barrel.

I was very nervous about losing $80. I went back in the house and scoured my bedroom. Sure enough I found the envelope. How it got tucked in my sheets I don't know.

The funniest part of this story is what the neighbors thought of me barrel picking. It could make it to Facebook. "Jimmy hits on tough days!"

As I enjoy my golden years, my memory is what keeps me going so I always try to remember things.

I remember that we are now into the Christmas season so the lights are on the porch and I hope to bring my big Santa up soon.

Medford Street) during the Gilman Square Green Line Station construction and returned it to the City of Somerville in May 2023.

The Gilman Square Station Area Plan, with nine major goals, was adopted in 2014 and has shaped modernization of zoning there to include more density, as well as recommending upgrades to civic spaces like the Marshall Street Playground and the Winter Hill Schoolyard (completed 2018), the city tells The Times. Fast forward to November 2023's Housing and Community Development Committee meeting where the Department laid out a three-fold focus through 2024:

- Working on a study of all city-owned land and disposition strategy
- Research into grant funding for infrastructure up to the Green Line station, and;
- Temporary placemaking to bring activity to the Homans site in the short term.

Complications arose this past year, including continued staffing challenges and "a pause in long-term redevelopment planning to determine if the site was needed for the Winter Hill School response." As reported in Cambridge Day in November 2023, The City of Somerville's Economic Development department indicated that disposition study (a study of city properties to sell, sublease, or negotiate a lease buyout of a property, for example) would take the better part of a year.

"The analogy that I'm finding best describes this (as) trying to untangle a knotted necklace," says Rachel Nadkarni, Director of Economic Development. "The future of the Homans site is several knots back from the end, behind the city's Capital Investment Plan, the Disposition Strategy, and partnering with the MBTA on the accessible route to the station, which has long been identified as the top priority discussed in the neighborhood. Making decisions about redeveloping the Homans site requires first untangling key issues in those other efforts." The city's Capital Investments Plan (CIP) sets forth the capital projects the City will fund over future years.

While long term planning continues, the lights have turned on at the fields below the high school. The city created a temporary pop-up park and worked through grants for improving accessibility to the Green Line, as a primer for the future. "CultureHouse worked with numerous event organizers to bring over 70 events to the space between June and September 2024, including art, music, fitness, markets, political office hours, and community gatherings. The temporary pop-up park remains open and available for community events and everyday use."

Furthermore, Planning staff applied for grants for a bridge at the East Somerville Green Line Station, in partnership with the MBTA and private developers. That partnership is yielding "important learnings that will inform future grant requests for the Gilman Square work, including general construction costs and how high over the catenary lines a pedestrian bridge needs to be." Other development activity in the Gilman Square area has occurred. 228-236 Pearl Street was up zoned for private development and the city has received an application to renovate the ground floor of the Piano Building (343 Medford Street).

Elsewhere, the Ball Square Transit-Oriented Development site, which makes an L shape around the grey substation, is located physically in Medford. The status of MBTA control of the space is unknown after outreach to the MBTA. As recent as May 2024, the MBTA announced completion of five "Collaborative Agreements to Advance Housing Transit-Oriented Development Projects," including Attleboro (600 units), Salem (120 mixed-income units), Winchester, Boston, and Swampscott (114 units, 76 as affordable). Tufts University and the MBTA have a long term "Maintenance and Security Agreement" in place, which may allow building of a 100,000-square-foot structure. That agreement was last updated publicly in 2015, however.

"The MBTA is considering all stakeholder interests with respect to the future use of the site."

City approves winter emergency warming center

By Harry Kane

The city has decided to transform the former Cummings Elementary School building into an overnight warming center for unhoused residents during the cold months.

At the City Council meeting on November 26, the city appropriated $388,000 to cover the costs of the warming center that will be in operation from December 9 through April 15. An additional $35,000 for a restroom trailer and $30,000 for security has been allocated by the city.

The city is in the process of contracting a site operator and security vendor. The operator will provide a site supervisor, staff the warming center and contract internal security, explained Connor McCombs, health communications officer at the Department of Health & Human Services. "The city will contract with an external security presence and directed patrols by SPD. Site staffing and security may be adjusted as needed throughout the season."

There will be an overnight capacity of 20-25 at the warming center, explained Public Information Officer Victoria MacGregor. "The capacity is based on operator-safe staffing levels. Capacity is also based on fire, building and shelter codes. A limited overflow is allowed in chairs, but not additional cots."

The city determined the need for a warming center is greater than last year, and therefore hours of operation have increased to accommodate homeless residents who require shelter and are among Somerville's most vulnerable.

Last winter, the warming center operated out of the second floor of the Armory. The operation lasted until March 24, but this year the city has extended the duration of the operation until April 13.

A warming center is a temporary night center for those experiencing homelessness, according to the City of Somerville website. The warming center will provide access to hot meals, bathrooms and safe sleeping spaces for residents experiencing homelessness.

"The warming center did not turn anyone away last year and will assess needs of unhoused from daily reporting from the operator," said MacGregor. "If we had too many people, or families we could not accommodate, the operator can transport them to other shelters in the region."

The former Cummings Elementary School building will serve as a warming center for unhoused residents through the winter months.

The warming center is a commitment from the city to provide a safe place to sleep during the coldest nights of the year, according to the City of Somerville's website. The hours of operation are 7 days per week, 5 p.m. to 8 a.m.

"This is an extension of length of the duration of the program from last year," said Karin Carroll, director of the Department of Health & Human Services during the City Council meeting on November 26.

The Cummings School building is located at 42 Prescott St. The former school building is named after John A. Cummings, the fifth Mayor of Somerville from 1881-1884, and the publisher of The Somerville Journal from 1872-1874.

The former school has been a mixed-use, city-owned building that was selected among five other

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week.

The 2025-2026 legislative session is scheduled to begin in January. One of the first orders of business in the Senate will be the adoption of the rules under which the Senate will operate during the next two years.

One of the proposed changes that will be debated is an attempt by the Republican minority to make it more difficult for the Senate to conduct late-night sessions. The makeup of the new Senate will consist of 36 Democrats and four Republicans.

Under current rules, a two-thirds roll call vote is required for the Senate to conduct its session beyond 8 p.m. A separate two-thirds roll call vote is required for the Senate to continue beyond midnight.

For the 2023-2024 session, the Republicans proposed two changes to those rules. The first would require a separate two-thirds vote for the session to continue after 10 p.m. and go until midnight. The second would require a unanimous vote for the Senate to meet beyond midnight.

"I voted in favor of these amendments as a check on how the Senate operates beyond normal business hours," said Sen. Ryan Fattman (R-Sutton). "It's important that these [changes take place] ... going into the next legislative session, in order to discourage the habit of debating and passing legislation under the cover of darkness and bring more transparency to the legislative process."

"The Senate rejected a couple of rule changes in order to justify more secrecy," said Paul Craney, a spokesperson for the Mass Fiscal Alliance. "It's a tremendous disservice to the taxpayers and their constituents. The Senate should not be meeting in the very late or early morning hours to conduct their official business. Unfortunately, in Massachusetts, the legislative process is very broken."

Opponents of the two new rules say the current Senate rules are sufficient.

"On rare occasions to complete critical work such as lowering housing costs or reforming the prescription drug industry, the Senate meets beyond regular business hours and into the evening," said a spokesperson for Senate President Karen Spilka (D-Ashland). "Under the Senate rules approved by members for the [2023-2024 session], two-thirds of the members must vote in order to continue a session beyond 8 p.m. and two-thirds must also vote in order to continue beyond midnight."

Here is how your local senators voted on the two new rules for the 2023-2024 session. The same two new rules will likely be considered by the incoming 2025-2026 session.

REQUIRE A TWO-THIRDS VOTE TO GO BEYOND 10 P.M.

Senate 4-34, rejected an amendment that would require a two-thirds vote for the Senate to continue any session beyond 10 p.m. and continue the session until midnight. This would be in addition to a current Senate rule that requires a two-thirds vote to continue a session beyond 8 p.m. and a two-thirds vote to continue a session beyond midnight.

Amendment supporters said requiring the two-thirds vote will ensure that late-night sessions between 10 p.m. and midnight, when legislators are tired and many citizens are already sleeping, do not become the norm but are allowed only when a vast majority of senators favor it.

Amendment opponents said the current rules requiring a two-thirds vote to go beyond 8 p.m. and another two-thirds vote to go beyond midnight are sufficient and argued there is no need to add another layer.

(A "Yes" vote is for requiring a two-thirds vote to go beyond 10 p.m. and continue until midnight. A "No" vote is against it.)

Sen. Patricia Jehlen No

REQUIRE UNANIMOUS VOTE TO GO BEYOND MIDNIGHT

Senate 4-34, rejected an amendment that would require a unanimous vote for the Senate to continue any session beyond midnight. Current Senate rules require a two-thirds vote to go beyond midnight.

Amendment supporters said sessions after midnight, when taxpayers are sleeping, and some members are barely awake, are irresponsible and should only be held if 100 percent of the senators agree there is a major emergency.

Amendment opponents said going beyond midnight currently is only done when there is an emergency. They said it is often impossible to get a unanimous vote on anything and argued it is not wise to give a single member the power to essentially adjourn the Senate.

(A "Yes" vote is for requiring a unanimous vote to go beyond midnight. A "No" vote is against requiring it.)

BAN NICOTINE AND TOBACCO – A trio of legislators announced they plan to co-sponsor legislation aimed at eventually ending the sale of all nicotine and tobacco products in the Bay State. Sen. Jason Lewis (D-Winchester) and Reps. Tommy Vitolo (D-Brookline) and Kate Lipper-Garabedian (D-Melrose) said they will file the bill for consideration in the 2025-2026 legislative session.

The proposal will not take away the right to purchase nicotine and tobacco products from anyone who is already legally able to do so. Instead, the measure would prohibit people under 21 who are not currently old enough to legally purchase nicotine and tobacco products, to ever be lawfully able to purchase these products in Massachusetts.

"We all know the devastating health effects of nicotine and tobacco products, especially on our youth who are targeted by Big Tobacco," said Sen. Lewis. "This bill will save countless lives and create a healthier world for the next generation."

"This legislation treats everyone fairly," said Rep. Vitolo. "Those who are not old enough now to obtain nicotine products will never be old enough to buy them in Massachusetts. Those who are old enough today will always be old enough. This problem is going to take a generation to solve, and with this legislation we can solve it, one day at a time."

"We already have laws that prevent tobacco retailers from selling to anyone under 21 - and they check IDs diligently," responded Peter Brennan, executive director of the New England Convenience Store and Energy Marketers Association. "The current system works. Prohibiting adults from purchasing legal tobacco products in a regulated environment such as local stores is a misguided infringement on adults' rights and will do nothing to address youth tobacco use."

ATTORNEY GENERAL CAMPBELL ISSUES CITATIONS TO SOME BURGER KING FRANCHISE OWNERS - Attorney General Andrea Campbell announced that her office has issued citations totaling more than $2 million against Northeast Foods LLC, a company which operates dozens of Burger King franchise locations across the Bay State, for violating various state employment laws, including child labor laws. The citations include restitution for unpaid wages and penalties.

COMMENTARY

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Illustrated by Jim Clark

Don't forget to shop local this holiday season.

Our View Of The Times

Here comes the holiday shopping season once again, and we are ready to embrace the opportunity to celebrate the only way we know how: with enthusiasm and optimistic attitudes.

Let the political and social pundits doom and gloom themselves into their usual perpetual state of the doldrums. We know how to lift ourselves, to rise to the occasion and make the most of what we have, in spite of whatever challenges may confront us.

Also, we can thankfully breathe a little easier now that the covid pandemic is showing signs of finally subsiding to an appreciable degree.

While the Thanksgiving holiday reminds us to be grateful for the blessings we have received, likewise, the other seasonal holidays that follow allow us the opportunity to share our bounty and to take stock in all the good things that life here in our city has to offer.

We know that prosperity of spirit is far more important than the material wealth that may elude us from time to time. It may sound trite, but when you really think about it seriously the truth of it becomes clear and meaningful.

As we are so often reminded, "local first" applies to our friends, families, and the occasional stranger as much as it does to our local economy. It's a time to be a little kinder, and a little gentler with one another, as well as help local business to both survive and thrive.

We are certain that the rewards to be gained from this will soften the effects of whatever excesses we may experience along the way.

OBITUARY

Marie E. Howe

June 13, 1939 - December 2, 2024

Irish-American woman.

A lifelong resident of Somerville, Howe was elected to the House of Representatives from the 31st Middlesex District, holding office from 1965 to 1988. While in office, Marie also served on the Commerce and Labor, Rules, and Ways and Means Committees. She was instrumental in supporting a stronger Lemon Law to make sure consumers got fair treatment when purchasing automobiles.

Marie was also a trailblazer in terms of women's equality. In April 1975, Representative Howe and State Representative Lois Pines served as co-chairs of the newly formed Massachusetts Caucus of Women Legislators, during a time when there were 16 women total in the House and Senate.

Today there are more than 60 legislators in the Massachusetts Caucus of Women. Among the pressing issues of that time was the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment in Massachusetts, and more locally, the right of women to have equal pay, equal opportunities and equal decision-making duties at the State House.

Representative Howe's long-standing commitment to peace and justice in Northern Ireland is one of the hallmarks of her illustrious career. The daughter of Irish immigrants from Cork and Armagh, Howe objected to the poor treatment of Northern Ireland nationalists at the hands of the British Government during the 1970s and 1980s and was quick to protest against British officials who came to town, including a visit from the Royal Family and a visit of a British Tall Ship. She worked closely with Amnesty International and local groups concerned about the Northern Ireland troubles. In 1979 she introduced a House Resolution calling upon the Governor to declare March 17 as Human Rights Day in Ireland.

Howe was also a strong supporter of human rights in Sri Lanka, and in 1981 filed a resolution on behalf of Sri Lanka Tamils living in Somerville.

Marie Howe's papers from her legislative career are at the Massachusetts State Library in the State House. The papers in the collection consist primarily of correspondence relating to her official duties in the legislature, as well as materials on Northern Ireland and Sri Lanka and her investigation into problems on the MBTA red line.

Visiting hours for Marie will be held Tuesday morning, December 10, 2024, in St. Ann Church, 399 Medford St. Somerville from 9:00am to 11:00am, followed by a Funeral Mass at 11:00. Relatives and friends invited.

As Massachusetts completes the celebration of Irish American Heritage Month and Women's History Month in March, here's a special shout-out to former Massachusetts State Representative Marie E. Howe, a notable

Holiday Dishes

This holiday season looks quite different than years past for many of us. Usually, we host between 30-35 people on Christmas Eve. This year, it will be just the two of us. Sure, there will be phone calls, FaceTime, or whatever other platform you use to be in touch with family and friends. I know it's not the same, but I'm grateful nonetheless. Thank goodness for technology. With the vaccines on the horizon, better days are headed our way. May this pave the way for an outstanding 2021.

Here is a compilation of holiday dishes that I've written about over the past few years. Maybe you can create new family traditions using some of these recipes. Happy Holidays to all!

Dear Somerville Community,

As the new Executive Director at the Somerville Museum, I would like to introduce myself and share what drew me to this incredible cultural institution nestled in a residential neighborhood on the corner of Central Street and Westwood Road right in the heart of Somerville.

The Somerville Museum's mission is to be a "mirror" to one of the most unique, innovative, creative and diverse communities in the country with a rich history that deepens our understanding of who we are, where we came from and what we want our future to look like. Having facilitated and curated public art and as a former academic with a focus on cultural memory, I believe strongly in the significance of the arts to create space for shared understanding, transcend differences, and bring people together with a common purpose.

Walking into the Somerville Museum evokes a sense of sanctuary and contemplation with its two stories of beautiful arched windows where the light bathes the main gallery space. The gallery's distinctive features include a Charles Bulfinch staircase, George Loring doors and Federal Revivalist architectural molding. Against this backdrop steeped in history, our regionally recognized and award-winning exhibitions like "Sanctuary City," "BLUE," "Museo Immigrante" and "Above and Beyond" feature the art, creativity, history, and spirit of Somerville past and present, transforming the space in ways that ignite the imagination, and activate an ongoing dialogue with history and place.

For the coming year the Somerville Museum, along with a select group of institutions from across the State, received grant funding from the Massachusetts Office of Travel and Tourism to produce programming related to the 250th anniversary of the American Revolution. With this grant we are supported in using this occasion to explore not only the Revolution, but themes of revolution, freedom, independence, as well as untold stories and the "firsts" that distinguish Somerville's legacies.

Beyond the museum, our historically themed community events and stimulating Tavern Talks at Aeronaut Brewery have been going strong while our beautiful museum has been closed to the public for restorations and renovations supported by funds from the American Rescue Plan Act and Community Preservation Act. Improvements you can look forward to include the addition of an elevator making our museum fully accessible to people with mobility challenges, and the installation of an HVAC system that will allow for temperature control throughout the building, keeping our collections safe and enabling us to remain open all year around!

We are nearing the end of our renovations and cannot wait to welcome you back to the Museum with a new exhibition on "The Art of the Festival" in Nepal and commissioned murals by the well-known Somerville Nepali artist, Imagine. As you enter the museum at the ADA or main entrances, you will be greeted by Imagine's vibrant colors and sweeping Sanskrit that translates into English as "Welcome to All!"

We want to engage with you! We welcome your input through our community survey, your companionship on our member trip to Cuba this February, your applications to our Community Curator program, your involvement as a volunteer or Advisory Council Member and your support as a member or donor. Please take a moment to explore our website at www.somervillemuseum.org, get in touch with us at info@somerville-museum.org, or stop in and see us when we reopen on January 16!

I look forward to getting to know each other.

buildings based on factors such as city ownership, heating, ADA compliance, no current shared use and proximity to the target population.

Access is through the Prescott St. side, using the gymnasium as an entry point to two separate rooms on the left. There are some planned upgrades to the indoor bathrooms, along with installation of fire alarms, painting and lighting additions.

This year's costs have increased due to additional hours of operation, Carroll said. Roughly two-thirds of the money from the budget for the warming center goes towards paying personnel.

During a meeting on November 18, where members of the community discussed the future of the warming center, there was an attempt to obtain a heated trailer with showers, but unfortunately every one of the trailers containing showers is being used for hurricane relief. However, a restroom trailer will be available as a temporary solution due to the bathrooms at the Cummings School building being child-sized.

In addition to a new security firm, a transportation element has been added to assist individuals to travel to and from the warming center, Carroll added.

Based on last year's data, the Davis Square neighborhood is where the majority of the homelessness come from, Carroll said. There will be a small van that will transport folks from Davis Square and other areas to the warming center. Taxi vouchers will also be provided if the van is not available to service the neighborhood.

"I'm very glad to hear that the transportation is in both directions," said City Councilor President Ben Ewen-Campen. "I'm certainly in support of this."

Ward 6 City Councilor Lance L. Davis questioned whether the van would only be used to transport individuals to and from Davis Square. "I'm glad to hear that we will be providing transportation that's not just in police vehicles because I know that was a challenge for some folks last year," said Councilor Davis. "I'm thrilled that folks will be transported from the Davis Square area where they can stay warm at night. What about folks elsewhere in the city?"

Carroll assured the councilors that transportation would be provided from other areas of Somerville as needed, and that taxi vouchers would substitute for the van, if the van was unavailable. "They will be able to go where the need is," Carroll said, regarding the van's daily route.

Jack Connolly, former Alderman from Ward 6, applauded the city's effort to provide shelter for the homelessness with the addition of an overnight warming center.

"It's going to shelter people from the cold ... and obviously a winter's night is not fun for anybody outside," Connolly said. "It remains to be seen how effective it's going to be and for how long it will last."

Connolly explained that more homeless have filtered into Somerville since Boston Mayor Michelle Wu's Administration removed tent encampments at the epicenter of the crisis at Massachusetts Avenue and Melnea Cass Boulevard.

Melnea Cass was known as the "First Lady of Roxbury," and was an American community and civil rights activist.

"A lot of those folks maneuvered up the red lines to Central Square, to Davis [Square] and up to Alewife, and tend to congregate," Connolly said.

Connolly says the "Davis Square Day-tripper's" come for the day, but tend to return at night. "For those people who don't, yes, having a bus to Prescott Street to drop them off for shelter ... I give the city credit for trying to put a Band-Aid on what's probably an even bigger problem based on the number of people that are probably looking for somewhere to be."

Bow Market hosts Small Business Saturday celebrates local businesses and community spirit

By Robert Posio

On Saturday, November 30, Bow Market hosted Small Business Saturday, a holiday of sorts, celebrating the spirit of community and local businesses in Somerville. The market, known for its eclectic mix of over 30 small shops, bars, and creative spaces, came alive with shoppers eager to explore and connect.

Small Business Saturday was started by American Express in 2010 in an attempt to drive more holiday shopping to smaller businesses. In 2011, the Senate unanimously approved a resolution endorsing Small Business Saturday, and by 2012, officials from all 50 states had joined in supporting the initiative.

"It's nice to shine a spotlight on the people who are starting from the ground up," said Megan Kilcoyne, the owner of Home Repair, a tailor shop that specializes in producing Bingo Cards. Shoppers earned a stamp for each purchase made at one of the market's retail shops or vendors. Completing a bingo allowed participants to submit their card to be entered in a raffle for a gift basket worth over $125. Additionally, attendees can enter a different raffle by posting a picture from the selfie station to their Instagram.

In addition to this event, Bow Market hosted their annual Makers Market, an event where local pop-up vendors can showcase their work. The vendors were selling a variety of unique items including jewelry, artwork, and candles.

Katie Barry, the founder of Cosmic Coupe, showed off her artwork which was themed to a "dinner party in a different dimension" She was selling various home decor items that were plastered in her vibrant artwork along with a recipe book for cocktails and mocktails.

Bow Market stores hosted Small Business Saturday last weekend, offering holiday shoppers a wide variety of gifts and decorations to celebrate the season.

clothing alterations and repairs.

For many of Bow Market's stores, fostering a sense of community is as important as the products they sell. At Vinyl Index, a record store that has called the market home for six years, the emphasis is on building meaningful relationships with customers.

"You can come in here and ask for something, we'll get it no matter what," said Aaron Wetjen-Barry, an employee at Vinyl Index. "We bring knowledge and enthusiasm that you wouldn't get if you were shopping from bigger or online corporations."

Bow Market encouraged shoppers to explore its diverse selection of stores by in-

"The team at Bow has always been fantastic. They really provide people with a space to pop up and create their own universe," Barry said. "Whether they are doing pottery or art, it is really giving people a platform to express themselves and connect with the community"

Supporting small businesses this holiday season is crucial, especially as consumer spending is expected to decline. On average, shoppers plan to spend $294 at small businesses this year, a 40% drop from the $485 per person projected last year according to QuickBooks.

Not only does shopping at local businesses provide a way to connect with members within a community, it is a way to support the local economy. About 67 cents of every dollar spent at a local business stays within the community according to Business Wire. This money can create opportunities for other residents within the community.

"Shopping small is a great way to remind people that we are helping our neighbors." These are people that all live in the greater Somerville area," said Zola Coleman, an event director for Bow Market. "These businesses are important to keeping our neighborhoods diverse, to keeping our neighborhoods exciting, and to shop in a way that stays in our community."

This year, the US Chambers of Commerce is teaming up with American Ex-

Book review – ‘Books Can Be Deceiving’ by Jenn McKinlay

By Dennis Fischman

Can you separate what you feel about the author from what you think about the book?

That’s a question that comes up throughout literary history. Can you read Ezra Pound’s poetry knowing about his fascist sympathies [1]? What about classic mystery writers like Dorothy Sayers and her casual slurs aimed at Jews [2], Blacks, and Italians?

In our own times, there’s a world-wide bestselling author whose work is beloved (and read by many young people who went on to read all kinds of fiction because of her), yet she harangues and harasses trans women. In my household, that author is referred to as She-Who-Must-Not-Be-Named.

So it’s a pleasure for me to say that I’m reviewing a book by Jenn McKinlay [3] after telling you about another series of hers [4] back in March, partly because I love what she posted on Threads [5]:

MAGA - racist, misogynistic, xenophobic, homophobic, and utterly despicable. If you vote for Trump, unfollow me immediately. Don’t buy my books. There’s nothing there for you. +US+US+US+

But mainly, I want you to know about Books Can Be Deceiving: Library Lover’s Mystery #1 [6] because it’s a promising start to series of cozy mysteries, and we could use a little more cozy in our lives right now!

To quote the publisher, “Lindsey is getting into her groove as the director of the Briar Creek Public Library when a New York editor visits town, creating quite a buzz. Lindsey’s friend Beth wants to sell the editor her children’s book, but Beth’s boyfriend, a famous author, gets in the way.

When they go to confront him, he’s found murdered – and Beth is the prime suspect. Lindsey has to act fast – before they throw the book at the wrong person.”

Yes, the cliches of romance/cozy mystery are here: a cluster of girlfriends, men who are either awful personalities or hunks with no personality, and an amateur who has to turn detective because her best friend is a suspect. Jenn McKinlay does it all well, however, and the references to books the patrons check out of the library are a bonus.

Just the sort of fun to take my mind off the election. And contrary to what she says, readers of all political stripes could enjoy this mystery!

Help Somerville explore new clean energy technology

Mayor Katjana Ballantyne and Somerville’s Office of Sustainability and Environment (OSE) are inviting community members to help the city assess the feasibility of a networked geothermal loop in Somerville.

“Somerville is committed to exploring innovative solutions to achieve our climate goals, and networked geothermal technology offers an exciting opportunity to transition to cleaner, safer, and more efficient energy,” said Mayor Katjana Ballantyne. “We invite residents to join us at these meetings to learn more, share their insights, and help us assess how this cutting-edge technology could benefit our community.”

Networked Geothermal is an emerging utility-scale technology that can help communities transition to efficient renewable energy by using the stable temperatures of the bedrock beneath the earth’s surface.

In networked geothermal systems, geothermal wells and ground source heat pumps are linked together to serve a collection of connected buildings, including residential and businesses, on a neighborhood scale. The technology can help Somerville reach its greenhouse gas reduction goals by providing a cleaner and safer alternative to fossil fuels.

Learn More at Upcoming Community Meetings

All residents are invited to attend either of two community meetings where City staff will educate constituents about the opportunities of networked geothermal and provide information on how residents can support the feasibility study.

Meeting Details:

Dates: Monday, December 9 and Wednesday, January 8

Time: 6 – 7:30 p.m.

Register: Sign up to attend the meetings at somervillema.gov/geothermal.

This work is made possible through a Kickstart Mass grant from the Massachusetts Clean Energy Center Energy Center (MassCEC) and HEET, which was awarded to help Massachusetts communities that have displayed interest in implementing geothermal networks begin to study the feasibility of the technology. .

More About This Initiative

The City’s Office of Sustainability and Environment (OSE) through a competitive procurement process selected engineering and design firm Buro Happold to help assess feasibility of networked geothermal in Somerville. As part of this feasibility assessment, they have identified three neighborhoods where there is potential to install a system. Residents in these neighborhoods may receive postcards and door hangers with more information about the program, and instructions on how to help the City and Buro Happold evaluate the site’s potential by volunteering to provide utility data.

The city will continue gathering information through early January 2025. A final study outlining the potential application of this technology in Somerville will be published March 2025.

For more information, go to somervillema.gov/geothermal or contact Garrett Anderson at ganderson@somervillema.gov or (857) 270-4403.

2022 and March 2023 when it scheduled minors for work during legally prohibited hours and in excess of the state's limit of nine daily working hours for workers that are 16- and 17-years old. She also alleges that the Burger King franchise operator failed to pay minimum wage and make timely payments to workers, and in some instances, failed to pay any wages to workers.

"Our workplace laws exist to provide crucial rights and protections to our workforce," said Campbell. "My office will continue to enforce these laws to protect and empower workers, including young workers who contribute to their communities and gain new skills and experiences."

AUDIT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EARLY EDUCATION AND CARE - State Auditor Diana DiZoglio released the results of an audit of the Department of Early Education and Care (EEC), reviewing the period from January 1, 2021 to December 31, 2022.

EEC, which licenses approximately 9,000 childcare-related programs that support an average of 55,000 children daily, has responsibilities including providing financial assistance for childcare services to families with low incomes, providing parenting support to families and providing professional development opportunities to employees in the field of early education and care.

The audit's findings include charges that EEC did not conduct licensing visits to residential programs within the required timeframes. The report noted that EEC cannot ensure that its residential programs operate within safe and healthy environments if it does not complete licensing visits within the required period.

The report also alleges that EEC did not review or initiate investigations of all reports of suspected child abuse and neglect in its licensed programs and failed to conduct all required background record checks for all employees of its licensed residential programs.

"Our Early Education and Care audit has identified serious issues that put children at risk," said DiZoglio. "These concerns must be immediately addressed so children are protected. We urge the administration to respond with the urgency that this matter requires and look forward to our post-audit review in six months to track progress on our recommendations."

$3.8 BILLION TO ADDRESS SEXUAL AND DOMESTIC VIOLENCE - Gov. Maura Healey announced that the state awarded $3.8 million in state and federal funds to support state, local and nonprofit agencies working to combat intimate partner violence, sexual assault, human trafficking and stalking.

"This grant funding reaffirms our deep commitment to ensuring a future where every individual can live with dignity, respect and without fear of abuse," said Healey. "By investing in programs that support healing and justice, these grants will provide essential resources for survivors of domestic and sexual violence, human trafficking and stalking. Professionals across sectors will be empowered to deliver trauma-informed, accessible services to help survivors rebuild and thrive."

"Safe, reliable access to services is vital for survivors of sexual and domestic violence," said Public Safety and Security Secretary Terrence Reidy. "By fostering strong partnerships among prosecutors, law enforcement and service providers, we create a network of life-saving support that reaches those who need it most. With these grants, state, local and nonprofit agencies are empowered to deliver critical interventions and services that help survivors on their path to healing and recovery."

GOVERNOR'S COUNCIL CERTIFIES PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION RESULTS - The Governor's Council certified the results of the election of Massachusetts's eleven electors for the offices of U.S. president and vice-president. All 50 states have to certify their votes in the federal election and send them to Congress to be counted before the Electoral College gathers on December 17 to cast their state's electoral votes to make President-elect Donald Trump's victory official.

Preliminary results show Harris received more than 61 percent of the Massachusetts vote and Trump won 36.5 percent. Secretary of State Bill Galvin's office announced that 3,512,866 Massachusetts voters participated in the Nov. 5 election, representing the second highest number of ballots cast in Massachusetts history, just behind the 3,657,972 ballots cast in 2020.

"I ... want to commend the secretary of state's office for their continued perfect administration of elections here in the commonwealth," said Gov. Healey. "We thank you for your work in this election and all elections."

"The turnout in Massachusetts appears to reflect a national trend, with a significant drop in participation in several of our cities, especially those with larger minority populations, and a slightly smaller rise in turnout in the more rural and suburban areas of the state," said Galvin.

QUOTABLE QUOTES

"Since launching our Office of Outdoor Recreation, we have made it our mission to ensure that the outdoors is accessible and inclusive to everyone. Our approach is fueling local economies and empowering communities and organizations. This report demonstrates that we can drive business growth and foster connections with our natural resources at the same time." — Energy and Environmental Affairs Secretary Rebecca Tepper on new figures from the U.S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of Economic Analysis reporting the significant expansion of Massachusetts' outdoor recreation economy which generated $13.2 billion in value added to the state's economy in 2023 and created 103,600 jobs.

"It is extremely important to deter bars from over-serving and prevent problems before they happen. We want to keep people safe and make sure everyone can enjoy the holidays with their family and friends, avoiding tragedies before they occur." — State Treasurer Deb Goldberg announcing that the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission which she chairs, will be conducting alcohol enforcement at local bars in in Massachusetts cities and towns from Thanksgiving Eve through New Year's Eve.

"The educational experience of all students – regardless of their racial and ethnic background – will be enriched by having diverse teachers throughout their learning journey. Our students need our public schools to recruit and retain more exceptional educators of color, and now we have one more tool to help us do that." — Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA) President Max Page, applauding the inclusion of key elements of the MTA-backed "Educator Diversity Act" in the economic development bill just signed into law by the governor.

HOW LONG WAS LAST WEEK'S SESSION?

Beacon Hill Roll Call tracks the length of time that the House and Senate were in session each week. Many legislators say that legislative sessions are only one aspect of the Legislature's job and that a lot of important work is done outside of the House and Senate chambers. They note that their jobs also involve committee work, research, constituent work and other matters that are important to their districts. Critics say that the Legislature does not meet regularly or long enough to debate and vote in public view on the thousands of pieces of legislation that have been filed. They note that the infrequency and brief length of sessions are misguided and lead to irresponsible late-night sessions and a mad rush to act on dozens of bills in the days immediately preceding the end of an annual session.

During the week of November 25-29, the House met for a total of 37 minutes and the Senate met for a total of 34 minutes.

Mon Nov. 25	House 11:00 a.m. to 11:27 a.m. Senate 11:06 a.m. to 11:24 a.m.
Tues. Nov. 26	No House session No Senate session
Wed. Nov. 27	House 11:00 a.m. to 11:10 a.m. Senate 11:06 a.m. to 11:22 a.m.
Thurs. Nov. 28	No House session No Senate session
Fri. Nov. 29	No House session No Senate session

2024 Gobble Gobble Gobble Road Race

By Ben Spaulding
President, Somerville Road Runners

Despite cool and rainy weather, the 28th annual Gobble Gobble Gobble, Somerville's Thanksgiving Day road race hosted by the Somerville Road Runners, went off without a hitch on Thanksgiving morning.

This year's race was the largest in the event's 28-year history with over 3,300 registering for the event. Although the rain and cool temperatures kept some away, over 2,500 people finished the four-mile race, which started and ended in Davis Square.

Winners of the race included Brian Harvey of Belmont, who won the men's division and the overall race, Rachel Hyland of Belmont who won the women's division, and Alyssa Moskites of Medford, who won the non-binary division. Post-race runners enjoyed the traditional post-race party at the Burren with beer from the Mighty Squirrel.

The Gobble Gobble Gobble is one of the last remaining all-volunteer-led road races of its size, and is the largest turkey trot in metro Boston. As in previous years, the majority of the race proceeds will be donated to local charities, including the Somerville Homeless Coalition, Stride for Stride, the Somerville High School Track Pac, and the Dilboy VFW Veterans fund.

The Somerville Road Runners would like to thank the City of Somerville, the DPW, Police, and Fire Departments for all their help in preparing for the race and the race sponsors which helped produce such a great event, including Marathon Sports, Tracksmith, the Burren, the Mighty Squirrel, Puma, Picky Bars, Republic Fitness and the Teamsters Local 122.

The Somerville Road Runners (SRR) are a Somerville based running club. Founded in 1996. The club hosts several weekly group runs, track workouts, week-end long runs, and puts on several races a year, including the Gobble Gobble Gobble, the MOM's Run, and the 26x1 Mile Club Challenge Relay.

With over 500 members, SRR has runners of all experiences and abilities, from experienced marathoners to runners just starting out. For more information about the Somerville Road Runners, visit srr.org

REMINDER: Final Track Improvement Program Service Suspension

Following up on the previous announcement on November 15, the MBTA is reminding riders that Green Line service will be suspended between Park Street and Union Square as well as Medford/Tufts for 15 days December 6 – 20. This is the final service suspension as part of the MBTA's Track Improvement Program, which has replaced thousands of feet track and ties to eliminate speed restrictions. Following this Green Line service outage, the entire subway system will be free of slow zones.

Riders can find complete information at mbta.com/GreenLine. More information on these service changes and alternate travel options is below:

- Free and accessible shuttle bus service will replace trains between North Station and Medford/Tufts.
- Riders should note that there will be no shuttle bus service between North Station and Park Street. Riders should instead utilize the Orange Line for parallel service through North Station and Park Street.
- Riders are also reminded that Orange Line / Green Line connections can also be made via the Winter Street Concourse, which connects Park Street and Downtown Crossing Stations.
- Riders should note there will be no shuttle bus service to Union Square. Green Line Union Square Branch riders can instead use area bus routes, including the 86, 91, and CT2 between Union Square and East Somerville Station on the Medford Branch. These bus routes also travel to Sullivan Square on the Orange Line. In addition, Route 87 travels between Union Square and Lechmere.

– Riders are reminded that Route 86 service will shorten to end at Harvard Square beginning on December 15 as part of Phase 1 of Bus Network Redesign. Beginning on December 15, riders can use the new Route 109, which will run every 15 minutes or better all day from Sullivan Square through Union Square to Harvard Square.

– Riders using shuttle buses during these service changes should budget ample extra travel time. For example, a rider travelling to Park Street from Medford/Tufts should budget at least an additional 35 minutes of travel time in addition to their regular commute.

– Union Square riders are strongly encouraged to use local buses to Sullivan Square or Central Square for a faster travel time to downtown Boston.

The MBTA understands how these service changes affect riders' daily travels during this period, but we are committed to improving your travels long term with more reliable, timely, and safe service. We thank riders for their patience as we deliver this important work and for continuing to ride our system.

More information is also available through in-station signage and public announcements. Transit Ambassadors and MBTA staff will be available on-site to offer information and assistance during these service changes. Riders are encouraged to subscribe to T-Alerts or to follow the MBTA on X @MBTA for up-to-date service information.

In the future, speed restrictions may be needed from time to time if warranted by a changing track condition – this is normal and common across all passenger rail service providers. As a result of the successful Track Improvement Program that has taken place over the last year, the MBTA is now well-positioned to quickly respond to any track issues that may arise. If and when new restrictions are required, they will be addressed promptly to continue to provide riders with the safe and reliable service they deserve.

Prepare for the 2024/2025 snow season

It's that time of year. Here are some reminders ahead of the first snowfall:

- Snow emergency parking is on the even side of the street all winter this season unless posted signage says differently.
- For every snowfall, property owners are responsible for shoveling their sidewalks down to the pavement within six daylight hours after the snow stops.
- To get snow emergency announcements, sign up for alerts or update your information at somervillema.gov/alerts or by calling 311 (617-666-3311).
- Flashing blue lights at major intersections also indicate a snow emergency has been declared.
- Snow emergencies are also announced on the city's website, social media feeds, CityTV, and via information shared with local media.
- The Somerville Teen Shoveling program, a paid program encouraging youths to shovel out seniors and homeowners with disabilities after a snowstorm, is accepting applications. You must be registered with the program prior to a storm beginning. Sign up your teen or learn more and submit an application for shoveling assistance: <https://www.somervillema.gov/departments/programs/teen-snow-shoveling-program>.

Vernon Street 50th Anniversary Exhibition

Vernon Street Studios, Somerville's largest artist studio building, is celebrating its 50th anniversary.

Vernon Street Studios got its start in 1973, when a select group of prolific local artists (that included the likes of esteemed artists Clara Wainwright and Maud Morgan) went to the building owners, the Rogers Family, to propose the idea of having artists share the spaces in the upper lofts of their building, which housed – and still does – a foam manufacturing company. They said yes.

Over time, more and more artist studios were added, and today there are over 100 artists working in the building, making it the largest concentration of working artist studios in the city. This initial enclave of artists played a key role in attracting other artists, and helping spawn other studio buildings.

This special retrospective exhibit featuring Vernon Street artists both past and present.

Streamlined procedures for Community Assembly Room at Assembly Square announced

As part of its efforts to ensure that the 143-acre Assembly Square parcel develop sustainably to meet Somerville's and regional needs, the Mystic View Task Force negotiated with the Public Storage Company at 50 Middlesex Avenue to secure a room for community events, including organization meetings and performances open to the public.

The yield of that discussion, the Community Assembly Room, or CAR, is located in the storage facility complex behind Mama Ana Café and is administered by MVTF. It is approximately 20' x 30' and has about 50 chairs. There are restrooms in the hallway between the CAR and the café.

To bolster use since the pandemic, MVTF has streamlined its procedures. Interested parties should contact treasurer Alan Stiehl (wastiehl@gmail.com) at least ten days before a prospective event to secure the room for the desired date and time and to receive advisories on use.

We suggest a donation of $35 or whatever your organization can afford for each use of a duration of up to four hours, in order to help cover the cost of insurance and maintenance. We hope for a busy year.

Somerville Fair Housing Commission
Question of the week

Q: Is it against the law for a building to be elders-only?

A: We can see why you might think that, but no. Discriminating against families with children is against the law – except in legally designated "housing for older persons."

Somerville Fair Housing Commission generally meets on the fourth Thursday of each month at 3 p.m. online. Call 617-625-6600 ext. 2578 for the login information.

$1 million CPPI Grant Supports Inclusion

Congratulations to the Somerville Public Schools Early Education and Care Department, SPS Somerville Family Learning Collaborative, and the City of Somerville SomerPromise Department for writing a successful MA Dept. of Early Ed. and Care CPPI grant to collaborate on strengthening Somerville's mixed delivery preschool system for 3 to 5-year-olds through the Somerville Partnership for Young Children (SPYC).

The funds will go toward expanding access to high-quality inclusive preschool and child care for children in Somerville by providing translation services, family engagement, curriculum, professional development, coaching, and student intervention and special education services on-site at private and non-profit daycare centers in Somerville.

The work expands capacity to support very young children with special needs, as well as improving kindergarten-readiness and, ultimately, translates into higher academic outcomes for all students.

OFF THE SHELF

by Doug Holder

Poet Heather Treseler

I have been a Board Member of the New England Poetry Club for a few years now; and I remember judging our Motton Book Prize with other board members. When we came to discuss Heather Treseler's poetry collection, Auguries & Divinations there was a hands down love for the book. We were impressed with her facility with language, the music of her work and the deep layers of the lines in this insightful new collection. So after she won the Award, I decided to interview the author, and she generously agreed.

From her website:

"Auguries & Divinations tracks a young woman's coming of age, attuned to the unspoken liabilities in women's lives, the suburban underworld, and the energies of eros. An older woman becomes the narrator's Beatrice in love and survival, and she returns to the New England of her childhood ready to claim a life of her own making, drawing on the classical practice of augury, or observing birds to discern human fate."

Auguries & Divinations received the 2023 May Sarton New Hampshire Poetry Prize (Bauhan), and the 2024 Shelia Margaret Motton Book Award from the New England Poetry Club. It's been reviewed in the Boston Globe, the Poetry Foundation, LitHub, On the Seawall, Solstice Literary Magazine, and Worcester Magazine, and it's available directly from Bauhan and at many independent bookstores."

Doug Holder: Your poetry explores "the suburban underworld." I remember an image from the movie Blue Velvet by David Lynch. Lynch pans on the broad lawns of suburbia, and then goes below them, to show us the savagery of insects, etc., below the benign green carpet. Do you feel in some way you are doing the same thing?

Heather Treseler: I hadn't thought of that before, but I think the David Lynch analogy is a very canny one.

I am interested in the suburbs as a material enactment of American ideals – pastoral, economic, familial, and social – and as a geography in which appearances and realities often collide. I was ten years old when my family moved from a triple decker in Hyde Park to a rundown Victorian in an upper-class suburb. We were outsiders, strivers, and as a newcomer (and later as a neighborhood babysitter), I started picking up on notes of disorder beneath rigorously maintained surfaces, the human complexities and unmet hungers behind façades of contentment and domestic tranquility.

As an adolescent, I felt like an amateur anthropologist, observing the lives around me, particularly the lives of girls and women, and I was discomfited by some of the compromises and even privations and wrongdoing that I saw. The suburbs enact an ethos of privacy, property, and propriety, but also surveillance, exclusion, and exploitation, which can serve to hide shocking goings-on. I was interested in the wildness that persisted underneath all that orderliness, and I felt I had to understand that tension if I was going to construct a life that met my hungers and desire for certain kinds of freedom.

DH: An older woman, Lucie, becomes a guide for your narrator – a sort of Beatrice in Dante's Divine Comedy. Why did you choose to have a guide or mentor to traverse the narrator through the rocky shoals of your old neighborhood?

HT: The Lucie Odes are about an historical person: the second section of the book details a narrator's friendship with Lucie Nell Beudet (1960-2018) in St. Louis, Missouri, while the narrator is in graduate school and, in other important ways, acquiring her life education. Lucie, who enacted a "Great Gatsby" climb in her life from an early abusive marriage and a terrible car wreck to a life of professional attainment, friendship, and fulfillment, shows the narrator – through her love and guidance – a path to her own agency and freedom.

DH: You use birds in some of your poems. Birds are frequently used as symbols in art to express human-animal connection; human hopes; spiritual beliefs; and wealth, power and colonialism, and extinction. Their use as symbols can be seen in the earliest known art (the Lascaux Caves), and their use as symbols persists to the present moment. There was a harrowing poem about a hawk devouring another bird, or a heron snapping up a sun-dazed fish, etc. I think you embrace the beauty and ugliness of nature, and ourselves. Your take?

HT: The "auguries" in my book title refers to the ancient Roman practice of making important political decisions – about the timing of battles, elections, and state proceedings – in Continued on page 23 connection with priests' interpretations of birds in flight, their appearance in certain regions of the sky, their wings' speed and noise, their feeding patterns, and even the appearance of avian entrails. Consulting natural signs to discern human fate seemed a good metaphor for the narrator's search for insight into the truer nature of her surroundings.

I've also always loved Geoffrey Chaucer's Parliament of Fowls in which Nature defends a female eagle (or formel)'s right to choose (or abstain from choosing) a mate, upholding free will in the harmonious conduct of life, as well as the humorous role of the pet sparrow in Catullus's love poems for Clodia.

So yes, the birds in Auguries & Divinations are polyvalent symbols for the realities of appetite and survival but also of pleasure, free will, and dialects of song.

DH: You won the New England Poetry Club's Motton Book Award. You have had any number of honors. What is special about this award?

HT: The New England Poetry Club is one of the oldest, most active organizations of its kind. Since Auguries & Divinations is a coming-of-age collection set here in New England, it's a special honor to have it recognized in its place of origin by a civic organization that has advocated for the work of New England poets for over a century.

DH: Why should we read your book?

HT: I am not sure anyone should read my book, but I hope those that do might find it pleasurable: that it rewards their attention with stories and images they find useful and moving; that it might help them see the landscape of everyday life in new ways. I don't know that a poet can hope for more than that.

Cul-de-Sac

That old rage for order: how my father drove a square mouthed mower over-and-back, over-and-back, each row of neatly trimmed grass cut just like he told his barber: boy's short, regular. O pioneer, taming this joke bit of prairie, no bindweed or dog shit on his verdure. Mother, meanwhile, absolved counters of crumbs, paired two dozen socks to matching mates, hummed some half-remembered Sinatra song as she dusted the porcelain figurines and never-used, quaintly painted China plates. In the antic business of having nice things, the obligation of display: a furnishing. Each squat house in our street's orb eyed the other, envious of another's paint job, carport or owner. Left alone, I built model planes with my torn-pocket parachutes. Rode a blue scooter in dizzying loops of the prescribed circle. Adults acted as if living here were preferred or exalted. But I had looked it up: I knew it meant bottom of the sack, the fate of drowned cats, a sickly child or rabbit. Gathered up, held head-down in a satchel or bucket. When the hands closed in, I'd make a run for it.
